FALL PREVIEW DAY

Academic Breakout Sessions

1:40 p.m.

ANCIENT, MEDIEVAL AND RENAISSANCE STUDIES

Learn about the power of the past on your present and future. Join Dr. Patricia DeMarco, Professor of English and Chair of the Ancient, Medieval and Renaissance Studies Program, as she showcases the opportunities available through this program. Merrick Hall, Room 201 (bldg. #47)

BOTANY-MICROBIOLOGY

Tour OWU's greenhouse and learn to measure photosynthesis with Dr. Laurie Anderson, Professor of Botany. Then, if you're interested in Microbiology, visit Dr. Suren Ambegaokar's interactive lab to observe cells. If you're more interested in Environmental Science, meet Dr. Nathan Rowley, joined by Dr. John Krygier, to explore remote sensing and weather station work. Meet in the Science Center, Atrium/Lobby (bldg. #52)

BOTANY

Head outdoors to explore one of OWU's two forested nature preserves with Dr. David Johnson, Professor of Botany. Long pants and closed-toe shoes are recommended. Transportation is provided, or you're welcome to follow the vehicle to the preserve. This off-campus session will last longer than 50 minutes. Meet in the Science Center, Atrium/Lobby (bldg. #52)

BUSINESS/ECONOMICS

Ready to get down to Business? Join the Department of Economics to learn more about Business, Economics, Accounting, and Entrepreneurship opportunities, including OWU's unique Fellowships. Students and professors will be on hand to share information and answer questions. Corns Building, Room 312 (bldg. #42)

CHEMISTRY

What elements do you need for a successful Chemistry degree and career? Learn about opportunities with Dr. David Lever, Professor of Chemistry. OWU offers Chemistry and Biochemistry majors, including ACF-certified majors that may be of special interest for those planning graduate studies or research careers.

Science Center, Room 151 (bldg. #52)

COMPARATIVE LITERATURE

This discussion will transport you to other times and places as members of the Comparative Literature Student Board share especially meaningful lessons from their Comparative Literature courses. The students will discuss why they found each lesson meaningful and relevant in their lives.

Sturges Hall, Room 106 (bldg. #50)

EDUCATION

Your teachers for this informative lesson will be OWU graduates working in the Education field and Dr. Sarah Kaka, Professor of Education. Ohio Wesleyan offers Early Childhood, Middle Childhood, Multi-Age, Special Education, and Young Adulthood licensure programs, as well as a Post-Baccalaureate Program.

Phillips Hall, Room 210 (bldg. #48)

ENGLISH

Punctuate your campus visit with insights on studying English at OWU. Hear from a panel of current students who are either English majors or minors. Departmental offerings for English majors include concentrations in Creative Writing or Literature.

Merrick Hall, Room 203 (bldg. #47)

ENVIRONMENTAL STUDIES

See Botany-Microbiology.

FILM STUDIES
